Overview

Can solar panels be installed on a flat roof in Ireland?

Flat Roofs Flat roofs are prevalent in Ireland, making them a common consideration for solar panel installation. The benefits of installing solar panels on flat roofs outweigh the drawbacks.

What are the best options for solar panel installation in Ireland?

Low-Sloped Roofs Low-sloped roofs are another viable option for solar panel installation in Ireland. These roofs offer advantages such as requiring fewer roofing materials per square foot, facilitating easier and safer installation and repair processes, and they have better drainage.

What is a flat roof solar panel mounting system?

However, flat roof solar panel mounting systems differ. Commonly, weighted mounting systems or "ballast systems" are employed, eliminating the need for holes. In these systems, gravity secures the installation above your roof, simplifying the installer's job. Another option is the Bauder roof system, known as BauderSOLAR, ideal for flat roofs.

How do solar panels work in Ireland?

The panels follow the same angle as your roof, which for most homes in Ireland, works just fine. Solar panels are mounted directly on top of your existing slates or tiles. Your roof slates or tiles are not removed. The solar panels sit on their mounting system just above. The panels follow the angle of your roof, which can't be adjusted.
